

Mike Mashke

Executive Vice President & Chief Lending Officer

First National Bank of Pasco

Mike Mashke (Mash'-key) is a forty-year veteran banker who started his career working in a community bank's mail room while in High School (1981). He then worked his way up through most retail area in a bank while pursuing a B.A. in Economics from the University of South Florida (1988). After completing Barnett Bank's Management Training Program, commercial lending has been Mike's passion throughout his career. Mike completed the Graduate School of Banking at Colorado program in 1999 and held a State of Florida Certified Building Contractor License.

Mike is from the last breed of true "old school" core-credit trained commercial lenders who understand all types of businesses and their credit needs. He built a strong reputation in the markets he worked by providing exceptional customer service, bringing innovative lending solutions, and being customer-focused by understanding that not all clients fit a square box. Mike's been in C-level leadership positions since 2007 and has successfully led his teams through many exciting yet challenging economic times in our industry.

Mike's natural leadership abilities spread beyond the bank and into the communities he served, where he has led or been on the boards of numerous non-profits, service, and philanthropic organizations. Additionally, Mike's talents include entertainment, as he is Screen Actors Guild (SAG) Qualified. Mike was a professional sports mascot for over twenty-five years for such teams as the Tampa Bay Buccaneers (Super Bowl XXXVII Ring holder), Tampa Bay Lightning, Tampa Bay Storm, and the University of South Florida, to name just a few.

Mike was born and raised in Englewood, FL, is married with three children, and currently lives in Dade City, FL.
